COMMUNICATOR INTERNSHIP

Graduate School at the Faculty of Social Sciences is responsible for interdisciplinary programmes and courses at the master’s level. We administer the three interdisciplinary programmes in Global Studies, Development Studies and Social Studies of Gender. In addition, we offer a range of elective courses, courses in theory of science and methods, and faculty-level PhD courses.

At Graduate School we have developed an ambitious information strategy to serve our various audiences with timely and relevant news about what we are doing ourselves, and about interesting projects and developments further afield. We cordially invite applications for a 20-week internship position where a communications and/or journalism student will work with us to develop and maintain our information channels, and provide stimulating and relevant content in English.

University students within journalism/communication programmes are encouraged to apply.

What we are looking for in a candidate

Can-do attitude, and team-work spirit are essential ingredients to fit into our closely knit and dynamic crew.

Creativity and an inquisitive mindset will ensure that central work tasks can be accomplished.

Fluency in English. Many Swedes routinely state that they are fluent in English, but here we really do need true fluency (our working language is English throughout). Proofs of crisp writing will be a decisive factor when selecting the eventual candidate.

Internship Conditions

Internship period: Spring 2018, 20 weeks full time (40 h / week) starting in January 2018 (start of term).

Remuneration: this is an unpaid internship position that should be an integral part of your studies.

Workplace: the Graduate School office at “Gamla Kirurgen” in Lund.

Supervision: you will be supervised by Mikael Sundström, director of studies at Graduate School, and senior lecturer at the department of political science.

Application procedure

To apply, please send a letter of motivation, CV, and short writing sample to mikael.sundstrom@svet.lu.se no later than 15 December. Information about Graduate School can be found here: graduateschool.sam.lu.se